

IT MIGHT BE TODAY

"Hard to Swallow"

We are now in our eighth year of presenting a Prophecy Update. This is #392 in that series.

If you're wondering why we talk a lot about prophecy, it's because one quarter of the Bible is devoted to it. One in every four verses is either a fulfilled prophecy, or a future one awaiting its fulfillment.

Eighty-percent have already come true. Since those that have not come true are all concerned with the end of the world, all that could have taken place has already done so, with 100% accuracy, giving us ample proof that the remaining prophecies will be literally fulfilled.

Knowing the end times prophecies, it is our belief that we can therefore identify trends in the world, and news, that would be expected in light of them.

We're not saying that the things we report are the fulfillment of prophecies - only that they are what you'd expect to be happening in the light of what we know about the future.

The majority of our updates are about advances in biometric technology. That's because the Bible, in the Revelation of Jesus Christ, describes the government and the economy of the last days utilizing some sort of identifying 'mark' that will enable citizens to conduct all of their daily interactions.

It's commonly called "the mark of the beast," the beast being a name for the antichrist. He will cause everyone to take his 'mark' on or in their hand or forehead. Without this biometric id, no one will be able to buy or sell, or interact with the government.

PC World posted a fascinating article, titled, Kill all passwords by eating them, says PayPal.

Excerpts:

[PayPal] says people will start inserting security devices into their body to enable their unique bodily characteristics to let them into their PayPal accounts, which are commonly targeted by hackers...

Jonathan LeBlanc, global head of developer advocacy at PayPal, said: "As long as passwords remain the standard methods for identifying your users on the web, people will still... continue to be shocked when their accounts become compromised."

PayPal says that more secure biometric systems built around fingerprints and iris scans are set to become outdated, even before most institutions - including PayPal - adopt them.

LeBlanc works with engineers and developers to find and test new technologies. He says embeddable, injectable and ingestible devices are the future for mobile payments and sensitive online interactions.

LeBlanc is currently giving a presentation called Kill all Passwords at various technology conferences around the US and Europe, and says technology is moving towards "true integration with the human body".

He says external body methods like fingerprints are “antiquated,” and that internal body functions like heartbeat and vein recognition using embedded and ingestible devices are the future, to allow “natural body identification.”

LeBlanc says internal devices could include brain implants, and that ingestible devices could be powered by stomach acid that runs batteries.

http://www.pcworld.com/article/2912401/kill-all-passwords-by-eating-them-says-paypal.html#tk.rss\_all

In a companion article, the writer said,

Google is finally making good on its quest to kill the password.

Every single major platform Google promotes declared war on the password in some fashion. And Google's far from the only company to come up with interesting authentication alternatives to memorizing long codes of numbers, letters, and special characters. From digitized tattoos to Bluetooth trickery and beyond... big names like... Apple, Samsung, and others are trying to kill the password.

When the apostle John first saw a biometric id on or in the hand or forehead, it was considered absurd. Now it's only a matter of time before it's rolled-out.

In the future Tribulation, some such system will be in place when the antichrist suddenly demands to be worshipped. Those who refuse will be cut-off from being able to participate in government, or from purchasing anything.

As exciting as it may be to see prophecy unfolding, we don't need to see anything happen, or to be fulfilled, before Jesus can resurrect and rapture the church. It is presented in the Bible as imminent.

Are you ready for the rapture? If not, get ready, stay ready, and keep looking up. Ready or not, Jesus is coming!