"There's a Chip in Your Future"

We like most Sunday's to bring what we call a Prophecy Update. We show how news and trends in the world are corroborating centuries-old prophecies found in the Bible.

When you hear someone say, "I don't have a microchip in my head - yet," and that person is Google's engineering director Scott Huffman, you stop to read the article.

It was posted December 9 on a British website and the article was titled, Google's Future: Microphones in the Ceiling and Microchips in Your Head.

Excerpts:

The future of the $300 billion business depends upon automatically predicting the search needs of users and then presenting them with the data they need.

"Computing is becoming so inexpensive that it's inevitable that there will be a ubiquity of connected devices around us, from our lapel to our car to Google Glasses [a new optical head-mounted computer]," said Huffman during a visit to the UK from the company's California base.

A microphone hanging from the ceiling, responding to verbal queries, would remove the need to whip out a phone...

The information could be relayed via "a wearable device, perhaps it might have a small screen, which you can only interact with through your voice and maybe touch but nothing else."

The article fell short of explaining the "microchip in my head" quote, but I think it's pretty clear that a device in you is much more secure and convenient than a device on you.

The apostle John spoke of something on you or in you by which you'd transact all of your daily business. He called it the Mark of the Beast because eventually it will be used by the antichrist to control his subjects during the last half of the seven year Great Tribulation.

I think we all know that it is no longer a question of if what John saw will happen, but of when.

Meanwhile we are reminded that we won't be here for the Great Tribulation. Jesus can return any moment to resurrect the dead in Christ and rapture living believers.

Are you ready for the rapture? If not, get ready, stay ready, and keep looking up. Ready or not, Jesus is coming!
