

IT MIGHT BE TODAY

"The Big 10"

Prophecy Update #835

I'm going to introduce us to a map of North America. It is an old map, but it is contemporary as well.

It's the Technate Map of America.

Quick show of hands. Who has heard of it?

It was published in July 1940 by a group called Technocracy. It was created by the organization's founder, an engineer, Howard Scott.

Virtually unknown now, the organization had more than half a million members in California alone at its time of greatest popularity during the 1930s and 1940s.

I want to give a quick disclaimer. Whether you are MAGA or suffer from Trump Derangement Syndrome, none of what I am going to say is a commentary about President Trump. None of it. It is simply historic facts that are true.

The bedrock principle of Technocracy can be discerned in an article Scott wrote. It's title: "America Now and Forever."

To achieve that goal, and insure America's preservation, Technocracy envisioned merging the US, Canada, Mexico, Central America, and the Caribbean into a single, self-sustaining entity.

Venezuela was on the map along with Colombia and the Guianas to, and I quote, "secure the natural resources and boundaries necessary for a completely independent, self-sustaining geographical unit."

Get this: Greenland was on the map as a critical strategic defense base to protect the continent's northeastern perimeter.

North America would be a single entity called a technate. It would serve as the prototype for the rest of the nations to establish technates.

Then there is this: Elon Musk's maternal grandfather, Joshua Haldeman, was a prominent leader in the Canadian technocracy movement. Critics and commentators have drawn parallels between original technocratic ideals and Musk's current initiatives, such as the Department of Government Efficiency (DOGE) and his vision for a self-sustaining colony on Mars.

Technocracy was an America First movement. It envisioned all of North America united under a single government. Commerce would be cashless. The prosperity of Venezuela, and the protection of Greenland were essential to the map.

You do realize, don't you, that all of this is contemporary?

The Club of Rome is an international think tank founded in 1968. It brings together scientists, economists, business leaders, and former heads of state to study long-term global challenges & solutions.

In the 1970s, the Club of Rome divided the world into ten regions.

Revelation 17 predicts 10 kings will rule over 10 kingdoms in the Great Tribulation, giving way to the Antichrist to rule them all. Over the years this idea of a 10 national or regional confederacy has been a main stay of Bible prophecy.

That's all I really mind blowing, but what does it have to do with prophecy? I'm glad you asked!

The prophecies of 10 kings are at least 2500 years old (if you go back to the book of Daniel). If in the future, the world's nations will join together and form 10 global regions, you would expect men to be talking about it from time to time. You would expect it to pop up in history until it becomes reality. And that's exactly what we see trending.

The underpinnings of a one-world government, with 10 regions, should be expected.

Christians won't see the antichrist come to power. We will be raptured prior to the Tribulation.

Are you ready for the rapture? If not, get ready, stay ready, keep looking up.

Ready or not, Jesus is coming!
